Comment: I'm pretty surprised to read an objection to the Aldi store (on behalf of someone else?) on the basis of the deliveries being outside acceptable times for noise.

a) Aldi will be subject to the same regulations for delivery times as all the other shops - there wont be deliveries at 3am and why would there be?

b) There already are deliveries for Wilkinson's, Carpet Right and Benson for Beds (in fact when Benson for Beds was the Waitrose supermarket just two or three years ago the deliveries would have been exactly the same as what they're proposed to be now, and this wasn't a problem)

c) the delivery depot is opposite the Sainsbury's delivery depot, which is about 3 times the size, for a store that's about 3 times the size of the proposed Aldi store. I don't recall anyone complaining when Sainsbury's were allowed to extend their delivery times by a few hours a week

I very much support Aldi coming back - Walton has sorely missed the shop
