Comment: Burhill Golf club and its environs is a host to many species of water fowl, some quite unusual. The addition of the reservoir will increase the habitat available for these birds which are a delight. In addition, the holding of water to use when the areas are suffering from drought like conditions as has been evidenced in recent years, goes to the overall health and well being of so many other species of wildlife. Of course the benefit is also for BHGC and its members and many visiting guests, a course in excellent condition throughout the year attracts visitors and societies, and brings in valuable additional income which otherwise may go elsewhere.
