Comment: The sewers in the area are already operating at maximum capacity. When there is torrential rain, waste water (sewage mixed with surface water which uses the same sewer) already overflows onto residents property. This development will, without question, make matters worse, resulting in more frequent and more severe flooding. Thames Water cannot possibly, in good faith, claim that the system can handle the excess surface water from this development.

Claygate lane is already far too busy at the start and end of the school day. The access road for this new development will make matters worse and will make the traffic even more congested and potentially dangerous for pedestrians and schoolchildren.
